

Tiffany Derry

Bravo TV's "Top Chef" fan favorite and entrepreneur

With humble beginnings in hospitality, Tiffany Derry has fired up the culinary scene from Dallas, Texas, where she built her TD Concepts brand and company from the ground up. Tiffany found a love of cooking at an early age and later graduated from The Art Institute of Houston, Texas. She went on to become a national spokesperson for the school and a sought-after sous chef at several regionally acclaimed restaurants.

Tiffany's natural ability in the kitchen and her colorful personality made her an obvious choice for Bravo's "Top Chef," where she was voted fan favorite in Season 7. This recognition earned her a spot as a contestant on "Top Chef All-Stars," where she made it to the final-four round.

Tiffany stands by one rule in her kitchen: make it taste good or forget it!

With a personal family connection to diabetes, Tiffany has also made it her mission to educate people about healthy lifestyles and portion control. She has worked tirelessly to revamp the Dallas School District's lunch program with more nutritious options. In blending nutrition with flavor, Tiffany stands by one rule in her kitchen, "make it taste good or forget it!"

Tiffany Derry is a paid spokesperson for Novo Nordisk.
